All readers are welcome to challenge the contents of this book, and should process them with their uttermost intellectual capabilities before they can assess them for reference purposes because they are largely a work of the author's own imaginations.

The stories given as examples in this book do not represent Factual or historical events but have been used fictitiously to bring out the literal aspects of discussions and also demonstrate authors intended thoughts and ideas exemplarily. Do not take them too seriously. This book is stacked up of numerous mini chapters the author refers to as cases. Each case stands for each idea or topic of discussion.

You will also find some non-English words, the author has used them only for the sake of enhancing description. They are not a result of typo.

Case-1- courts will save us.

It is the common people themselves who have made a great contribution to this problem of endless lawsuits, they run into courtrooms to settle their disputes even small disagreements that can be settled by a simple discussion, they rush it to courts, there they find a burdensome of activities (responsibilities) heavier than what they have faced if they had done things conventionally, they suddenly find themselves in a trap.

What they had thought would be a quick smooth contract later turned out to be a lengthy bitter and costly exchange. They had hoped the courts will save them from their dispute, and ended up being taken advantage of by tricky lawyers. Do you think the courts of this town care about the problems you have? Do you actually believe they can help you carry your burdens? Do you think they have your best interest at heart? All in their interest is how they can extract vast fortunes from your problems.

There are problems that really need court intervention to work, that we understand, but not every little argument, a tiny dispute between folks should not be rushed to courts. For the courts of this lily town are worthless.

When children fight in the neighbourhood, their parents run to courts to bring lawyers to separate them, they also call all their other neighbours to stand as witnesses, to give clear evidences of who did what to who first, whose child stole the others toys.

They rush to court hoping it will solve their problems quickly only to realise later that such a decision was a terrible mistake.

If some nasty guy will continually threaten me with a lawsuit, I would tell him this, "please go and tell your bodyguards that I have called you foolish, they are all foolish, and they can't reason out simple things that even little children can teach them. The fact that you call guards to arrest me because of what I have said proves you are really a fool. If you are going to call the police to arrest me because I have called you a fool, it proves that you are indeed foolish, why can't you talk back? Is your mouth tied up with bandage?"

Case-2-inferior law, a law so cheap.

These days anyone can change laws as they wish, right now I can give a proposal that everyone who visits a public park must put on a clown's socks for them to be allowed into the park, I then go to the municipal council office to argue out my idea, it is eventually taken down and becomes a law, as simple as that.

The changes for the laws come too quick that the laws are rendered worthless, when a new law is made, another person who is not pleased with it comes the following day to make changes to it, and then after that another comes to remodel it to fit his own understanding of justice, it goes on like this for days so that before the week is over the municipality's law has been changed over seven times, how can the citizens then abide by such laws if it changes every now and then?

You have two situations at stake here your highness, either you allow everyone to make their own laws and live by them or seal off the laws of the land from everyone so that no one would meddle with them.

Case-3-witness manipulation

A witness appeared before a high court to give account at what she saw at the crime scene, she hoped she would be able to help the victim in whatever way possible she can.

"What time did you say you were at the house?" asked the defendant's lawyer. "In the evening when nightfall was coming in," said the witness,

LAWYER: Around what time was that?

WITNESS: After seven,

LAWYER: After seven o'clock in the evening you say?

WITNESS: Yes

LAWYER: Would you please be specific madam about how many minutes were on the clock after seven,

WITNESS: I don't know sire, what I know is that I was at the house by seven, and maybe seven thirty.

LAWYER: Another witness here proves that you only got to show up at the house at seven fifty-five, That's almost eight, so you arrived at the house a few minutes to eight, that's almost night time my dear, you are saying here that you were at the house by seven o'clock in the evening, do you see another paid witness your honour? I am sorry my dear but I have already proven that you are a false witness.

WITNESS: All right then whatever time it was, you have your say, you can give your accurate time even to the smallest seconds, what I do know is that when I was at the house it was dark, that's all, please get me out of here...

LAWYER: You are going nowhere yet my dear, you have got a few more questions to answer...

The young witness wished she had never appeared in the trial, she was just trying to help, she felt sorry for the victims and wanted the offender to be discovered as soon as possible, now she found herself caught in a net.

We see witness manipulation in court rooms on a daily basis by some members of the law firms. Your highness you are doing them more harm than good,

Case-4-the law of the animals.

A boy was digging up a hole for a pole , then out of nowhere a neighbor's dog came out dashing for him, it was huge and fierce, barking endlessly, all the other people who were around him had left earlier on, he was all alone, when the dog had reached him and was about to pounce on him, he clenched the shovel he was digging with and waited patiently, when the dog hopped to reach for his face, he swung the shovel from his right shoulder and hit the dog with all his strength, the baseball style, the sharp edge of the shovel went right through the dogs neck and severed its head which flew off tangent touched the ground several meters away and rolled several times before coming to a rest,

A few minutes later people were crowding over the scene for it was very close to a very busy street, the boy was shocked later when he finds himself being grabbed by a handful of police and thrown into a van, he was still in shock from the encounter by then, with the shovel still hanging from his right hand, and blood that squirted from the dogs neck was still on his face, his prosecutors used this as an evidence for his guilt & barbarity, he thought the people were actually going to congratulate him for saving his life in such an heroic manner, little did he know he'd be condemned for such an insignificant offense. In the trial the accused came out guilty for brutal murder of pets and was given four years of hard time. His father was utterly heartbroken by the results of the trial, he came up to these words to express his displeasure for the sentence,

Your highness, this is complete madness, don't you dare proceed with your legislative fanaticism you call justice. Four years of hard time? This is too much for this kid. So, in your judgement you suggest the boy should have died and let the beast live, because it can be sold for a profit.

This was not a pet as you cleverly tried to put it, I know very well what pets are, they are cute little things you keep around the house, this was a huge monster/beast about to take the life of my innocent kid. With high levels of testosterone and fifty kilos of raw muscle, I tell you, your highness it was pure muscle, it could easily over power and maul two grown men, it was bigger than the grizzly and its fangs more poisonous than that of a rattle snake,

The people in this town tremble with fear because each day their pets are constantly growing unfriendly with their neighbours, can't you see that the boy was just trying to defend himself?

These animal lovers must be out of their minds, is an animal's life more important than that of a human? My boy took away the life of a fearsome beast, but instead of people rejoicing for his bravery that saved his life and rid the neighbourhood of a troublesome monster, they are condemning him, this surely was no pet, a rabid dog does not deserve to live, no matter how beautiful its fur may look like.

This is not justice for sure your highness, are you saying that my boy should have died and let the dog live? My son was attacked by a fierce dog, he was only defending himself.

If you are in the fields with your pets, then a sudden thunderstorm arises, if you have one tent which cannot provide shelter for all of you, the law of the animals says that in such a rain you should remove the roof of your tent and use it to cover the animals while you remain standing in the storm, because they cannot shield themselves from the storm. The law of the animals says that you shall give four times as much food to your animals as compared to that you give to your baby.

A time shall come when animal shall make laws and men shall obey them

Case-5-law of infants.

Our children, you have let them grow horns, now they can charge at us as they wish and we have no way to stop them nor control them, the horns which you sharpened now they use them to stab us in the belly whenever I try to speak to them, we have no way to defend ourselves back, now they have gotten out of control, they obey nothing, they listen to no one, you denied me the ability to instil proper discipline into them while they were still young, now they go about wild creating havoc and mayhem everywhere, like rabid dogs, how could they know what is right if they do not know what's wrong?

You have sharpened their horns, now they have grown old and can no longer be changed, I just sit back and watch them destroy themselves, there is nothing I can do, and their future that was once projected as bright has now turned dull as a stormy day. What does an infant that was born yesterday know about life, their high-tech gadgets cannot teach them even a tenth of what I could have taught them myself/personally.

Your highness please don't be quiet, say something, you started all these, when things get tough you are the first to withdraw,

If a parent has no authority over the child which they bore, what is life worth anyway? Can you use that gavel of yours to smash onto your children's heads? I know what's best for my children, if you wanted to own and control them, then you should bear your own children and give them whatever instructions you have so long desired to instil upon every child on the planet. I was just warning them, so they won't get into fire and burn their feet on hot coals. A parent disciplining their child is a proof that indeed he does love them. A parent who has lost authority over the child is like the one who has lost that child for good, they wonder away into the dark world, where they get to learn the important lessons of life the hard way.

Since I no longer have authority over this child, I will hand them over to you, so that you will raise them instead, and guide them to whatever direction you like, because you stripped me of that authority a long long time ago.

The youngsters on the streets wasting away their lives I do not blame them., it's the fault of the judiciary, it encourages them to misbehave, anyone who tries to stop or warns them of the dangers they are putting themselves into, is often punished severely. When a child looks for immediate gratification in their day today activities, the parent looks at the long-term effect it might have on their lives.

Is it the child that should be telling the parent what to do? Tell me if that is justice, are you trying to suggest that you love my children more than I do? And you care for them even more? I can't believe the children which I bore are the ones ordering me around the house.

How would you like to feel when sitting around any of these children? Let's say one is humble and un-rebellious and does everything his father tells him to do. The father is pleased with him. All the other family members feel comfortable when they are around him. The other is a questioner, he asks his father, "How much money do they pay you at the construction site?" when one is asking for when he shall come back home, the other is looking for details of his employment details & whereabouts instead.

Case-6-Law of lovers.

It appears that people who have very small families have the highest likelihood of losing some of their family members due to disagreement while those who have very large ones often get more members added to their group, as the old adage goes, "those who have something, more will be added to them and those who have nothing even the little they have shall be taken away from them." those that live peacefully with other members of their extended family appear to have stronger kin bonds than those that live with a nuclear one, what a strange world we happen to live in today, for instance a newlywed couple that plans to have six children end up having only four or less, the ones that plans to have three get two or less, and those that plan to have only one child sometimes get nothing.

Those couples that take in their nephews and nieces who have lost their parents appear to live happier than those who shut their doors to some of their homeless relatives, are more cooperatives towards one another and have less quarrels between themselves. If you have a bitter quarrel with your spouse, and you start to avoid them like a plague, then you happen to get comfort from the other member of your family who happen to lives with you, say a brother, a sister, uncle, aunt, father, mother or even grandparents, these are your flesh and blood and its only among them will you find people who really have concern for you, even if it's one among five, it's worth having someone who you can share your problems and feelings with even if they live far away, they could give you insights you never could have fathomed on your own, and stop you from doing things that could harm you. Not all are excellent at being their brother's keepers, but there are a lot of them who do really offer true care.

If the two of you are on a vacation on the mountain side and are enjoying yourselves, then when pitching up the tent you happen to disagree on which direction the tent's entrance should face, you say it should face the east while your spouse says it should face the west, no one will accept the tent to be put up until you reach an agreement, which seems to take eternity, evening approaches, it gets cold while you still argue, the disagreement happens to be so fierce & intense that it almost breaks into a fight. Luckily a game reserve patrol happens to be passing by and stops you just in time, next thing you find yourselves in front of an attorney, first and foremost before he can help you in any way he asks for service fees, when you say you have none, you have spent it all on your vacation, he orders the auctioning off of all your camping equipment, everything is sold including the tent you were arguing over, even your old camping van is not spared, after you are stripped of everything, he says, "now let's begin, what were you arguing about in the first place? Can we get serious for a moment?"

Your family problems opened business contracts for them, and it's an opportunity they can't miss, after all there is a donkey found on every farm. I walk around the neighbourhoods at night observing things carefully, if there is a wealthy family I happen to find having a lot of problems I prepare to visit them the next day, dressed in dazzling royalty I elegantly walk into their house, sit confidently on a couch summon all of them to the living room and say this to them, "I am Alikim prince of the blue sky, I have witnessed the problems your family is going through in the recent years, everything I have watched carefully from the sky, and I have come to help, do you allow me to bring the solution or do you see me as part of your problems? " if they allow me to help, then I advise them to do this, as they watch, I throw some dice, do many strange things pretending to be performing acts of divinity, then reveal this to them, "I have seen that your house is being haunted day and night by evil spirits, this beautiful mansion of yours hides great evil underneath the soil, it's the one that's causing you sleepless nights, countless illnesses and insecurities, I suggest you move out at once, sell it and hand half of the proceeds over to me, I will help you locate a safer house nearby," if they agree to my request then my success is complete, I quickly jump into my aging wagon and drive home.

Case-7-my family my business.

When I tried to correct them you asked me to stop, when I tried to warn them you demanded me to shut up, "but they are walking straight into fire," I said, let me continue to warn them so no harm would come to them, but you insisted that I should leave them alone, are you suggesting that you love my children more than I do, does disciplining a child proves that you hate them? Now they have grown up crooked and have got into real trouble, you are the first person to run there and lock them up, isolate them from the society and keep them far away from me, then you come back condemning me, asking why I left my children on the loose, you are the first person to ensure that everything bad they have done is forever remembered. And bring terrible punishments upon them, you show them no mercy. I could have corrected them when they were still young, this could have saved their lives, now it's too late for that. You are yet still not willing to help me. Instead of supporting me in this time of hardship you continue to bring condemnation upon me and my children.

If families are torn apart by the law man himself, how then can the society move on, a family is the smallest unit of a society yet also the most important, if it cannot stay together, how then can entire nation remain together, wouldn't it disintegrate just the same way families are being torn apart by or with the aid of the lawman. My home is my fortress, if any man pokes his nose into the affairs of my family, I shall wrestle him.

Case-8-Good intentioned.

The road to crime and criminal offences is paved with good intentions, Folks who had committed heinous crimes when records are followed straight up, they had purchased ammunition saying that they were going to use it to defend themselves, no one really ever intends to do evil, to cause others pain and bring about suffering, it just happens.

Most often the police are blamed for being too harsh, but looking at the reality of things, major cities pose a lot of challenges for the civil authorities, if crime is allowed to thrive, criminal organisations might overrun entire nations.

Where criminals are dumb, the police are dumb also, but in places where the police are smart, the criminals are highly intelligent too, no one is guaranteed success or victory over the other.

Those who swear never to forgive the bad things others do to them, should remember that they too have done lots of bad things to others.

Case-9-no case too difficult.

The rightful punishment for the slave who took the kings wife.

Here is the story of true justice I remember very well, it goes something like this...

"...When news spread of what the fellow had done, the palace guards quickly tied his hands and were about to chop off his head when the monarch said, no? Wait, let him live a little longer so that we can find out what actually happened, and then he said this to his wife who had been disgraced by the slave, "are you the one who seduced him or is he the one who forced you? These are your servants, lowly slaves If I may elaborate further, they are very shy and submissive, no servant would ever do anything their master didn't instruct them to, they tremble before them.

Now tell me, who is at fault? Is it you or him? The council wants justice to be done to the offender as soon as possible before word spreads, the council says my beauty queen is carrying a heathens child, they humiliated me so greatly, yesterday I could not stand up straight at the public square, not for a minute without hearing a word or two, you know very well that Jaabit was my best servant, he was the best of the best, it would haunt me forever if it was I who puts a blade upon his neck, other servants will lose faith in me, they'll say that he has served me well for so long while I chose to bring him unjust punishment in return."

The council says, "it looks like the sheikh's wife got a little bored and therefore had to take some form of entertainment from lowly servants."

All right then says the wife, "it wasn't my intention, it just happened, I did not mean to hurt you, all these years you have been busy with your bloody campaigns in foreign lands, you never take a moment to look at me, or even pay attention to what I say, when you were away, I invited a small group of servants to a feast in order to entertain me, unfortunately everyone got drunk, God knows what happened next..."

The king was infuriated by this, remarking, "You are aware of the fact that you hold a very high position in this land, for anything you do in secrets, word of it quickly spreads to cover the entire countryside, you shouldn't have gone about carelessly feasting and drinking around the place, while you know I have many enemies. You also know the laws of this land, that any servant who takes a noble's wife must be put to death, and the woman have her hanged on the public gallows.

Since I have my own principles and does not consider myself a noble either, I shall have to do things my own way, I will not punish Jaabit as he deserved, instead he will be cast out and sent away to a foreign land, and you shall lose your crown, your crown as queen of Belleerd Fort shall be handed over to one of your servant women, she will soon be made queen, since you have only angered the state by humiliating the king and the royal family, the only excellent punishment would be to give back an equally humiliating punishment.

I will spare my sword for my enemies, let the council do whatever they want, I will longer accept to be pushed around"

He has done nothing of which he deserves death, according to my logic, "said the King"

Fury from old memory.

A girl was found pointing a gun towards a famous tycoon, the security personnel was called in and after a long persuasion she was disarmed without anyone getting hurt, then a brief interrogation began.

"What were you doing at the chancellor's apartment in possession of a dangerous weapon?" Asked the gentleman, "you cannot understand," she replies, uh? Am I stupid? Is there anything I cannot understand? Just say it to me the way you find it best fit. I should at least have something to tell investigators tomorrow morning.

When the guards arrived, he had to explain to them what had ensued, "this young lady was once under my care," he started, "twenty years ago I was driving across the country to do some business in another district, then out of nowhere came this van, speeding out of control that went right underneath my truck, it's the only thing I remember, unfortunately of the six passengers in the van, only three survived, the driver didn't make it. After this tragic loss I followed up the deceased for months till I found where the drivers family lived, he was an ordinary farmer with a huge family to take care of, I found his wife and explained to her exactly what had happened, his van veered off the road and slammed into my truck, there was nothing I could do, I then offered to help the family in whatever way possible.

At first his wife refused this offer of assistance and sent me away angrily, she was still in pain from her loss, its only after a while later, about a year and a half that she called me, and asked if I could meet her at a restaurant, she moved her four kids into this town apartment from the countryside, including her youngest daughter who was about two at the time, the lady was a very hard working woman, she did everything she can to ensure her children had all they need, I too tried to help her in whatever possible way. Somehow, she didn't tell her children what happened to their father, maybe for fear it might affect them, or it could spark more questions I do not know, her daughter grew up in this apartment, they went to school together and played with my children, who were at the time motherless, she was like my own child. Then about a half a decade ago that I found great fortune at my new diamond mine, my life had changed then, I transformed from being a contract dredger to become an executive of a promising diamond mining company. Though I had moved far and away, I still found time to visit them, it is through one of this visits that she learned about what happened to her father, when she was young, she only knew that her father died in an accident, that's the only thing she was aware of, now she knows that I was there, she thinks I am the one who killed him, "you stranger! You murdered my father then secretly crawled into our lives pretending to be a nice person, STAY AWAY FROM ME," she yelled.

After the guards disarmed and calmed the young lady, they still insisted that their case be handled through legal procedures, but the tycoon refused to have any of that happen, each person went back home disappointed. Because he had refused to have the young lady charged some of the people present there thought that that tycoon was hiding something, word started to move around that he was guilty of some secret murder, many many years ago before he had gained popularity, its only after her mother came and described to them the exact details of the incident that their suspicion was over, she gave them the details of what happened the last night he was with his husband, the reports he had from the eyewitnesses who were at the crash site, how the tycoon had described the incident to her, how he offered to be of any assistance that she may need, she also rebuke her daughter for being unreasonable, impulsive and utterly aggressive, "you know very well that he had nothing to do with it, you almost killed a goose that laid us golden eggs, if he were indeed guilty of a murder, he would never had showed his face to us, people who commit such crimes often disappear for good, but since he approached us shortly after the incident shows his innocence and remorse he felt for us," she said to her.

Case-10-Crushing law.

You have announced to every vendor that he is a renown thug who recently walked out of jail, then because of this all the venders all of a sudden refuse to give him a job fearing that they themselves might be robbed as well, unable to recover his livelihood he is forced out back to the streets because the whole society now rejects him. How do you expect him to earn a living if he can't secure the smallest of jobs, you might as well force him to resort back to burglary. Lest you should give him some of your salary if you want to prevent him from causing anyone any further harm.

If they cannot secure a simple job, where in the world do you expect them to go? What do you expect them to do? your highness, I am afraid of your superior authority, I have deep respect for your status too, but I am sorry to tell you this, you are becoming a part of the problem, the sound of your gavel is sending shock waves across the nation, it is shattering lives, young lives especially, just the way a steel hammer shatters wooden planks and scatters them into pieces, that simple knock of a mallet has become equivalent to the sound of thunder, when it bangs loud behind them as they are led away into a cold dark room, never to see the face of the sun again, the banging of your gavel brings me many memories, many of which are too much for me to bear,

How do you explain the suffering the little boy Nathan is suffering?

"Hey come here Nathan," says his father, "Don't try to counsel me, if you can't settle your issues with mother, how come you try to teach me, go bring her back then, she is alive right, why can't I see her? This god damn law, and those bloody judges took my mother away from me, they claimed she was out of her mind, but I know my mother very well, she was perfectly okay, they chose to steal her away from me, it's better to die in the woods than to grow up in a family that has been torn to pieces by some heartless attorneys,"

His sister Emily follows him from behind and tries to prevent her from going into the woods, "I don't care what issues they have with one another, what is important is to see them work together to shield us from the storm." He tells her. They repeated these same words at the The-Macaw Show.

Nathan was unhappy because of the fact that even after many months of being together, his mother was on the leave, he didn't like the fact of seeing his mother go, he turned to his father thinking it is his fault, I have no doubt there are thousands of children today who feel the same and are going through the same challenges, they are completely heartbroken, they cannot understand how some of their parents who had loved them so much could just blatantly refuse to visit them. They are not behind bars neither are they sick, they are just there going about their business and enjoying their lives but are not willing to come see them, why? It's very evident the grave impacts the law man is having on these little ones.

Case-11-snoopy lawman.

In one moment, she had moved her allegiance to her lawyer and fell in love with him. Who claimed he was protecting her from her first love. What difference does it make then moving away from the cabin of a poor plumber to the hands of a witty lawyer? Some lawyers brought evil accusations against men so that they can steal their wives. Why are these so-called justice enforcers so eager to tear apart families that once lived happily with one another? It's a solid proof that they were indeed in a plot to take away from them their loved ones, they plotted this evil against me from the very beginning. And probably are now happy that I have lost and also because they have profited greatly from my misery.

Your highness if you would let me ask this, how does a small disagreement we had with an employee have to do with my personal bank account? He said something rude to me and some of his superiors, and I slapped him for it, "if I may ask, what does that have to do with my personal bank account? Isn't it a simple issue we can sort it out between ourselves?"

Your highness, I was robbed of my life time worth of earnings by some thugs who masqueraded as lawyers & attorneys, they demanded details of my personal information claiming to be men of the law and before I knew it everything in my account has mysteriously vanished.

Case-12-Dim Justice.

With your blind judges and wicked jury, they are blind to the effects their rulings are making to the society, each coming year they pass new legislations that plunge the society deeper and deeper into chaos. Your highness I faced great injustice at the department of justice, believe me there was nothing like it I have ever experienced in my life.

There are places I know of where you can get locked up for squashing a tomato at the grocery stalls or breaking a glass cup at a restaurant. Law has become more restrictive, locking, controlling demanding, condemning, judging, superstitious, and critical. You can't even crack a joke with an old friend, I am just joking, you know there is nothing to apologise about.

It's quite clear how deeply flawed the justice system is, the justice department delivering injustice is something quite common. Justice has become nearly impossible to achieve, why so? Or could the term justice mean nothing, only an illusion.

"Childhood is innocence, adulthood is guilt," says the judge, if you are an adult, then you must be guilty of something, "what is it that you are guilty of? Please tell me, and I will show you more things you hide from others." He trusts no adults.

The simple interpretation of God's law is that the person must be careful with whatever they do, Man's law on the other hand watches you carefully, when you break a glass of water he is ready to bring piles of accusations against you, it's no surprise that people get locked up for petty issues these days, like failing to clean his towel, saying he is endangering the lives of his team mates, the lawman standing right behind him, ready to enforce his will, I never thought squashing a tomato underfoot at the grocery store can get you charged, or breaking a glass at the winery/ bottling plant would lead to a sentence, "did God make all judges blind?" asked the son of Uz, Certainly they are not all blind, fair enough a good number of them are heavy drinkers, I believe definitely gives them poor judgement, their thoughts marred with condemnation, ready to punish anyone that shows them disrespect or speak carelessly during a hearing.

Gods law says love your neighbour and do good to them, man's law says, be nice to your neighbours but do not be too friendly to them, keep your security regulations still intact. Since they could be dangerous, it is advisable that you protect your homes with fierce dogs to guard your homes, put up a great steel wall, covered with barbed wire, glass fragments and electric lines on top, you should also dig anti- tank trenches and put ballistic missiles in them facing the direction of their homes, just for extra security purposes, don't trust your neighbour quiet too much.

Footnotes.

My most used/favourite stylistic features

- Sharp contrast
- Heavy metaphor
- Extravagant exaggeration.

The reference to masculine characters In the above stories is not a biased motive to discriminate against any gender, it's just for the purposes of description, the authors repeated use of words such as he/him/man/king are just for the purposes of enchanting the narrative, if you feel offended by them then feel free to replace them with whatever words you choose as you read along, these pronouns are NOT put in place to intimidate, you can also contact the author directly and specify which part should changes be made to and to what particular effect, the author respects all readers and will not misrepresent members of any class, age, status or gender. All readers are precious.

I am trying to avoid the inconvenience of having to jump from one side of the group to another as it easily puts the readers off, jumping from side to side, back and forth, here and there is really irritating, take for instance it's better to say, "the king came out of his castle, called the knights and asked him to take him out on a ride through the royal forests and left his son in charge of the castle," than to say, "the king/queen came out of his/her castle, called the knight/knightess and asked him/her to take him/her out on a ride through the royal forest and left his/her son/daughter in charge of the castle"

Textual homogeneity- some aspects of the words, phrases and stories share lots of similarities with one another, the keen reader who repeatedly crosscheck between different titles will definitely notice this trend, if characters are portrayed in such a sluggish manner that makes the text boring to the reader, then reader please remember to inform the author as soon as possible.
